

Dr. Yiannis Bakouros is Professor of Management of Technology and Innovation, founder and head of Management of Technology Research Laboratory (MATER Lab) of the University of Western Macedonia. He is a Member of the Senate of the University and President of the Regional Council for Research and Innovation (PSEK) of Western Macedonia. Director of Regional Development, Entrepreneurship and Technological Innovation actions of the Innovation Pole of Western Macedonia, the Innovation Observatory and the Virtual Technopolis of the wider region of Western Macedonia. After receiving his PhD in Production Unit Management, he worked as a board member, Technical Consultant, Production and Sales Manager in Industrial, Commercial and Consulting Companies. He has participated as Scientific Officer in over 100 Research - Development Projects designed and implemented in Greece and Europe with emphasis on Southeast Europe and the Balkans and related to his main research activities such as Technology Management, Regional Development, Regional Competitiveness, Civil Protection, Crisis Management, Natural Disasters, Cross-Border Policies, Innovation Strategies, Information Management Networks, Reliability - Maintenance, Industrial Health and Safety and has published a significant number of relevant articles and final reports and reports on relevant research and development projects.